

Jane Espenson to Dollhouse! I'm feeling more optimistic.

Contributed by Matt

It's about time we got some good news from the Dollhouse set. Apparently, Jane Espenson is going to be writing for the show (and probably producing it). Last I heard, they didn't have enough money to bring her along, but it looks like that's changed now that Steven DeKnight is gone as a consulting producer. I'm not sure if that's the reason for the Jane hiring, but it makes sense.

Anyway, Joss posted about this bit of information and a whole load of crap (also - a lot of defending the Fox suits) in a whedonesque post. You can check it out here.
